A Message from the Dean

A few years ago, our law librarians, principally Corinne Jacox, compiled the PUBLICATIONS OF THE 2002-2003 LAW FACULTY, CREIGHTON UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF LAW. That work reflected the vibrant and varied productivity of our faculty. The law library's website contains a current list of faculty publications. I'm proud and delighted that our faculty continue to create scholarship for a variety of legal audiences and I encourage you to visit the website to see for yourself.

Now, Corinne Jacox, along with the Associate Director of the Law Library Ann Kitchel, has expanded her work to reach back to the beginning of the law school. Starting in 1904, the year the law school was founded, the list of faculty publications continues through 2004, the school's centennial. It lists the professional publications of the more than 125 men and women who have had the privilege of serving on the Creighton University School of Law faculty. It's a superb resource and I'm very grateful to Corinne as well as to Ann for taking on this project.

As the law school moves into its second century, I have no doubt that the faculty's scholarship will continue to benefit the practicing bar and academia. A CENTURY OF CREIGHTON UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF LAW FACULTY PUBLICATIONS, 1904-2004 is a great tribute to the people who have made this law school the success it is today. I know that my faculty colleagues and I are thankful for the efforts of those who came before us.

Preface

“...there is no such thing as good writing. There is only good rewriting.”
-Louis D. Brandeis, The Legal Profession, in THE TORCH, Apr. 1957, at 8.

Five years ago, the Creighton University School of Law celebrated its centennial year. Although selected bibliographies containing the scholarly output of Creighton’s Law Faculty have been assembled in the past, a comprehensive bibliography covering faculty publications written during our first hundred years has not been compiled until now.

Although the scope of this retrospective bibliography is a century, several important parameters were observed in determining what publications to include. First, it is limited to the scholarly works written by faculty members while they were affiliated with Creighton as a member of the faculty. Second, short dedications/tributes, newspaper articles, op-eds, and news columns are not included. Teacher’s manuals and exercises that accompany textbooks or casebooks were excluded. Third, with few exceptions, CLE and seminar materials were included if a paper copy has been located and is available.

The intention of this retrospective effort is to include only publications written by full-time faculty members. However, during the first couple of decades the precise status of faculty members is not easy to discern. At that time the law school relied heavily on part-time faculty members. So, in these early years, all professors listed by name in any of the law school bulletins are included. A useful list of faculty member names, and corresponding years at Creighton, appears at the end of the bibliography.

Corinne Jacox, Catalog / Reference Librarian, is the principal compiler. Her careful and persistent efforts have brought this large retrospective work to fruition. Ann Kitchel, Associate Law Library Director, also participated in constructing citations and editing. Finally, we respectfully acknowledge as a valuable compilation resource, our centennial history: OLIVER B. POLLAK, TO EDUCATE AND SERVE, THE CENTENNIAL HISTORY OF CREIGHTON UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF LAW, 1904-2004 (2007).

Even though we have made a good faith effort to be precise and complete, any compilation with the ambition of capturing the scholarly work of a diverse and changing faculty over an entire century will undoubtedly include some errors or omissions. Accordingly, our Law Library will make corrections and additions to this work in the online version accessible through our web site. I also encourage readers to refer to the current Faculty Publications portion of our web site to find publications written since 2004.
